

Julianna Sarr (LT19) accepted a position with Agape Counseling and Therapeutic Services.

As Director of Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services she is expanding its outreach throughout the state of Virginia. This position requires a lot of treatment planning with clinical directors and practitioners, and services and program planning.

Currently, she is developing training modules for her staff, as well as crunching numbers, reading paperwork and opening new offices. She works with a team of Directors and her “leadership skills really come into play here.”

She has also started a consulting business called 'Sound Interventions.' This is a joint venture between with a world renown violinist and teacher raising awareness of the use of classical music in reducing stress, promoting wellness and productivity and inspiring learning in education, home and workplace and offering a specific training model for schools, workplace and home. She has partnered with a foundation within her current organization to promote training for Educators, Clients and Mental Health Professionals. When asked about her new position, Julianna stated, “I feel really great! I'm inspiring leadership and change.”
