

American College of Healthcare Executives 2017 Congress on Healthcare Leadership

Introduction

The ACHE's Congress on Healthcare Leadership is an educational symposium for healthcare executives and students that provide immeasurable opportunities to network and discuss new and innovating topics in healthcare. The four day convention attracts more than 4,000 healthcare executives across the continuum of care. Students are provided the unique opportunity to attend several educational sessions presented by professionals within the field on varies topics such as, "Making the Transition from Student to Executive", "Redefining Population Health", and "Job Interviewing Skills". Five students from Seton Hall University's Masters in Healthcare Administration program received a $500 scholarship to attend this year's conference in Chicago.

Questions to Ask When Looking for a Mentor

Professional Development

During the ACHE Congress, students had the opportunity to learn beyond the classroom and gain invaluable experience. Specifically, during one of the professional seminars, students learned the tools required to transition from student to executive as well as key job interviewing skills. The ACHE provided informational packets and resources to help students learn about the importance of personal branding, developing a personalized mission, vision and value statement, networking, and gaining the confidence needed to excel in the health field after graduate school. It is essential that students continue to grow as well as improve professional competencies to enhance career progression.

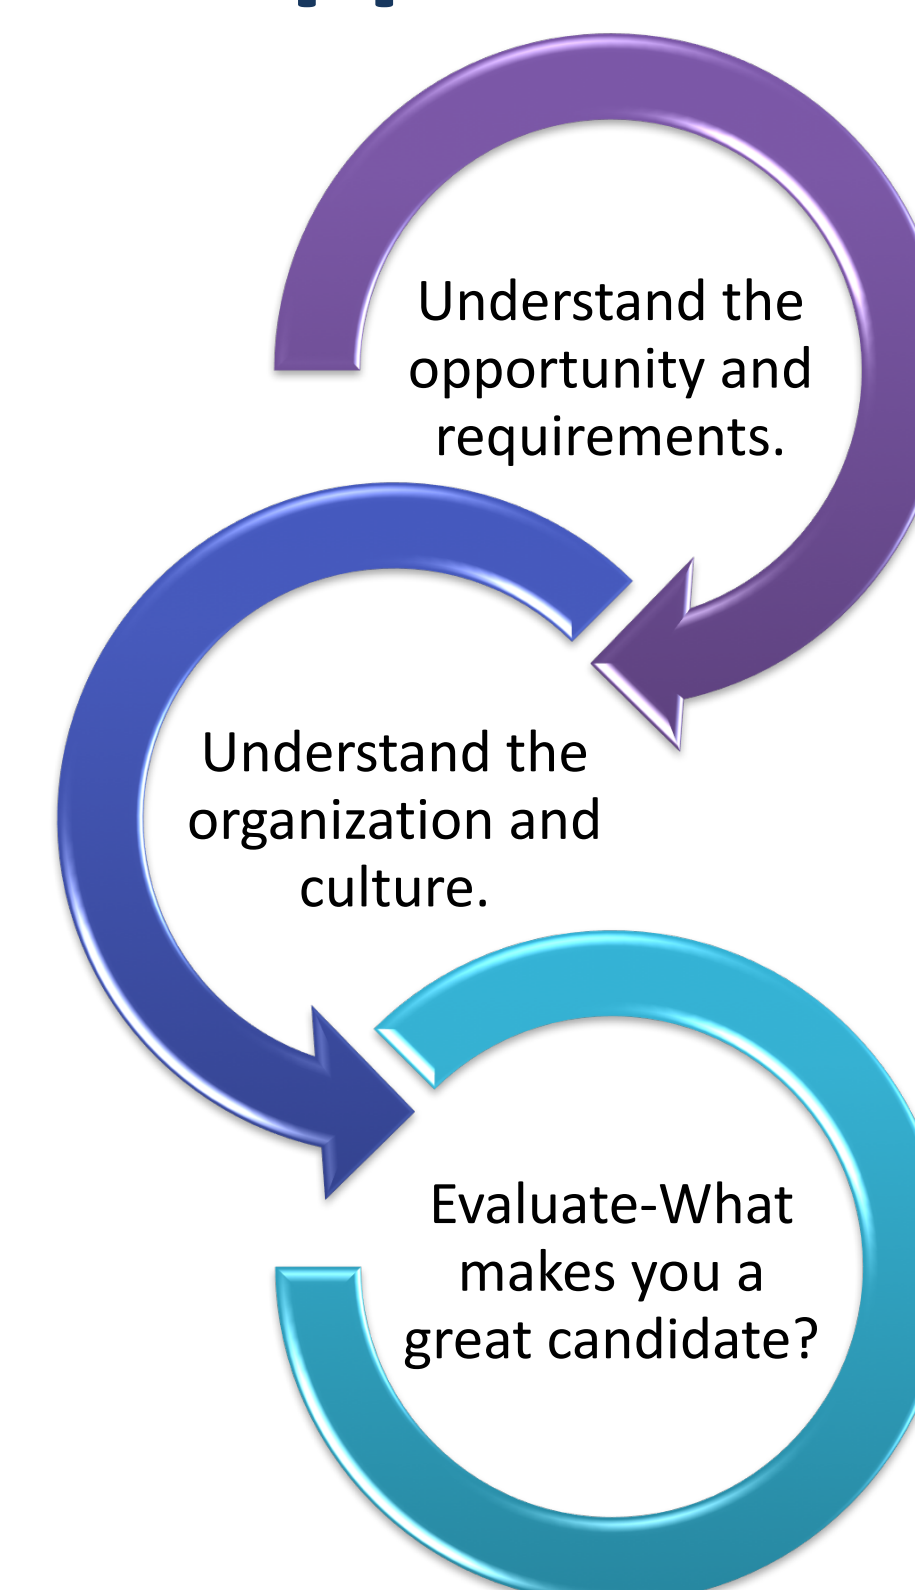

Cassandra Germana

Tools for Making the Transition from Student to Executive

Creating a successful application

Population Health Medical Model vs. Place-Based

MHA Competencies

The ACHE Congress provided a platform for students to learn beyond the classroom, nevertheless utilizing key concepts taught in the MHA program. For example, many of the concepts and terminologies taught in HCAD 7513- Healthcare Management were mentioned by the presenters. This included, "culture and how to effectively change a culture in an HCO", "patient-centered care", and "2015-2016 Baldrige Excellence Framework and Criteria." From HCAD 7518-Managing Community and Population Health, students learned about community health need assessments, the importance of utilizing data in population health, and community benefits. Overall many of the MHA competencies were incorporated throughout the seminar.

Summary

- The ACHE Congress was an insightful conference that provided seminars and networking events that expanded students skill set and enthusiasm for a career in the healthcare field.
- Encouraged students to continue learning beyond the classroom.
- Helped healthcare professionals develop key skills and leadership qualities.

The diagrams were created using information presented at the 2017 ACHE Congress on Healthcare Leadership.