

Your Students Can Continue Their Research in Aging — Fully Funded.

Seton Hall University's
George Eckes Memorial Scholarship in Aging

For Fall 2017, our M.S. in Experimental Psychology program is offering a full scholarship, plus research budget — a total financial package of $49,000 — to a highly qualified applicant who intends to continue study at the Ph.D. level in cognitive aging, aging neuroscience, gerontology or related field.

Priority Deadline: April 1, 2017

For more information, contact
Kelly Goedert at kelly.goedert@shu.edu,
or visit www.shu.edu/georgeeckes

Why the M.S. in Experimental Psychology at Seton Hall?

- Prepares students to be competitive for admittance into Ph.D. programs
- Organized like a doctoral program, with individualized one-on-one research training and mentoring
- State-of-the-art research facilities, including animal and eye-tracking laboratories
- Faculty expertise in behavioral neuroscience, developmental, cognitive, social, cultural and clinical psychology
- Three concentration options: Behavioral Neuroscience, Cognitive Neuroscience, Behavioral Sciences

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

SETON HALL UNIVERSITY