

Damaris Diaz

MEDIA PROFESSIONAL AND ADVOCATE FOR LATINO REPRESENTATION

BACKGROUND

Damaris Diaz was born in the Dominican Republic and moved to the United States as a young child. With roots in the Latino community, she went on to graduate from Seton Hall University where she dreamed of being on television. After completing an internship with Univision, she began her career with the network through the show Despierta America. Her background reflects a commitment to communication, culture, and community engagement within the evolving U.S. media landscape.

CAREER

Diaz has contributed to Univision's mission of delivering news, entertainment, and culturally relevant programming to millions of viewers across the country. Through her work in media, she has helped support content that reflects the experiences and perspectives of Latino communities. Her role within a major national network places her at the intersection of journalism, storytelling, and audience engagement in Spanish-language broadcasting.

IMPACT

Damaris Diaz's work contributes to the visibility and representation of Latino voices in American media. By supporting programming that informs and empowers Spanish-speaking audiences, she plays a part in strengthening cultural connection and access to information. Her contributions reflect the broader impact of Latino professionals in shaping media narratives and expanding representation in the United States.
